COCOA FOAM.

The manufacturer has consented to go to the entire stock, having declined the manufacture of it. To effect a rapid clearance of it we propose to retail it at the lowest wholesale prices as below:

Regular Cocoa Foam for toilet and bath, per dozen, $1; per gross, $10.

Rose Cocoa Foam, highly perfumed, for the toilet, per dozen, $1.40; per gross, $14.

Cocoa Foam, for the hair, an unequaled dressing of most beneficial effect in restoring itself and promoting the growth of the hair, per dozen $1; per gross, $10.

Complexion Cocoa Foam, all the benefits of the cocoa bath in a creamy and easy form, per dozen, $1.40; per gross, $14.

Carbolated Cocoa Foam, a disinfectant for all skin diseases, per dozen, $1.40; per gross, $14.

Cocoa Foam is manufactured from pure Cocoanut Oil—not a particle of adulteration entering into it to be in competition. It is easy to procure a softer and more abundant lather than any other, has remarkable cleansing qualities and a soothing and refreshing effect on the skin. It is especially beneficial to the hair. No one will care to be troubled with clogged hands while using it.

TAKE NOTICE.

To make room for other goods we offer our entire stock of Housefurnishing Goods (other than Cutlery) AT COST to close out.

Out of town orders will receive prompt attention.

We would suggest that there is nothing more acceptable for a

CHRISTMAS PRESENT

—THAN A FINE—

ALASKA SEAL SACQUE, JACKET or NEWMARKET.

You will always be in the recipient's mind, as it adds to her comfort and enjoyment, being in daily use. Better than Diamonds or precious Stones.

If your inclinations are not for anything so expensive, a genuine Cloth

Ulster or Stylish Newmarket,

Costing from $10.00 to $30.00, would doubtlessly do quite as well, or a rich

PLUSH GARMENT

Of some kind, in the style of a Jacket, Sacque, Wrap, or Newmarket, either plain or trimmed with Genuine

Marten, Bear, Monkey, Beaver, or Lynx.

A handsome Dress can be purchased from $12.00 to $25.00, having been marked down quite recently. Also imported and domestic Tea Gowns. But if your mind runs on smaller articles, there are plenty of small furs, such as Muffs, Boas, Capes, etc., etc., to select from.

In connection with the above we would state that customers purchasing Outside Garments, Dresses, or Suits we will guarantee a perfect fit, or if not satisfied with the style, color, or material we will exchange at any time, or make to order without extra charge.

WHAT SHALL IT BE?

At the holiday time the question as to what would be appropriate for a CHRISTMAS GIFT presents itself to many minds. We would suggest that no class of merchandise finds so much favor with the ladies as FINE TABLE CHINA, RICH CUT GLASS, and ORNAMENTAL POTTERY. Of these we exhibit the largest general assortment in this country. Our facilities enable us to place before the public the latest and most artistic shapes and decorations and the newest productions a full season in advance of houses not entirely devoted to the China Trade. That our prices are the lowest an inspection will confirm. SPECIAL SALE OF SINGLE CUPS AND SAUCERS.

MORTON ON HIS WAY HOME.

CRITICISES ROOSEVELT FOR A NEW ATTACK ON MR. HARRISON.

The President-Elect Attends the Pan-Alley Entertainment — Announcement Made Yesterday That Gen. Gordon Has Been Offered the Attorney Generalship—Mr. Harrison's Talk in a Speech—Talbert's Visit May Be for the Governorship of Georgia.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 15.—(Special.)—After two complete but eight hr. and fifteen min. Morton decided to start home a full hour earlier today than they had at first intended to start on account of some inconvenience in seeing the big parade and accompanying fireworks display that were held. Mrs. Morton had recovered from her indisposition yesterday, but the Vice-President-elect felt, as he had participated, more anxious to be right with a number of the Senate committees on public subjects and rights.

Gen. Harrison and Mr. Morton spent the evening together without much interruption, and at 9 o'clock they went out for a short walk. Soon after they returned the guests began to leave the spacious mansion, accompanied by Private Secretary Elstner and J. M. Dickson, the son-in-law of the President-elect, who had promised himself that they would join in a visit to the theaters, and there were those who had guessed at the depth to the good fun in store.

Mr. Dolliver was the only person of prominence who had called at the Harrison home during the afternoon, and there were many callers. Mr. Dolliver left a message for Mr. Morton, and soon after hour they sing on a visit to a few of the prominent good people. "They could have an hour's fun with Morton, and then we settled it was to be one of the rare evening," remarked one of Mr. Harrison's friends.

Owing to the dullness, this is a story to the gentlemen of the party who attended the "Hoosier boy home from you."

Private Secretary Elstner could hardly be known a leader of the fun.

Mr. Morton's opinion of the CLEVELAND Gen. Mr. and Mrs. Morton received these gifts during pretty nearly their visit, and the Vice-President-elect remarked to a reporter of the Harrison, "It is a great day here."

The social hop here which the visitors attended broke up over the last hour at 11:30 o'clock. Gen. Harrison and members of his family expressed regret that the visitors could not be persuaded to remain longer. The visit has been extremely pleasant to the host in the interest of the occasion with Mr. Morton the attraction for the two social of the city. Since he and Mrs. Morton left the Harrison home last night Mr. Morton has been the guest of honor at a number of social functions, and it is safe to say that he will be remembered by Indianapolis people as a most delightful man to entertain.

The probability of the appointment of Gen. Lew Wallace as Secretary of War also added to the festivities. It is believed in Indianapolis that Gen. Gordon will be tendered the Attorney Generalship, and that he will accept. It is also believed that Gen. Wallace will be appointed Secretary of War.

DOWNFALL OF DE LESSEPS.

THE PANAMA CANAL CRASH CAUSES A GREAT SENSATION IN PARIS.

United Efforts of Bulls and Bears Failed to Stay the Crash—Many Banks Refuse to Discount the Securities—Mr. Gladstone Congratulates the Liberals on the Progress of Home Rule.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

Paris, Dec. 15.—For days the audience of the Panama Canal Bourse has been in a state of feverish excitement, and the end has come at last. The scene of terror and turmoil was such as the office of the company could easily be stormed outside of Paris. It was a scene to terrify, and a scene not one that a painter is to be a picture of the passions of our time. The prices went lower than was expected. But all the Liberal newspapers had announced for the people not here to buy. In the morning hours preceding to fall to desired the same point. The most powerful clearing-house agency of stocking enterprises to close up the immediate cause. On the announcement came to DELESSEPS of Panama, for DELESSEPS, for DELESSEPS, and for DELESSEPS and as each appeal was answered a shudder of the bulk, but the end arrived. The men that gave here to witness the end that gave here to the company could have put the crash off for days or weeks.

The friends through the nation to the opposition of the press to the lottery scheme and hostility to the canal in general, but even the Liberal friends never that as an association Wednesday night had no money the report and no other news to speak the secret. The bid was accepted with enthusiasm, which was followed almost their assertions, which would assume their assistance and declare that they would only of saying to Liberal ranks. To-day the bulk of the bonds is held and sold.

As fresh the subscription is open. The promoters are confident, but have to meet for the life of Panama. You have given yourselves to your own enemies. The world is ready.

The stock and bonds of the which formerly consisted of shares of 500 francs each, and bonds of 500 francs each, have been split up into shares of 100 francs each, and bonds of 100 francs each, in order to bring them within the reach of small investors.

Although the fluctuating opinions of public confidence were to the Parliament, the Government, and the Chamber of Deputies, the Panama Canal bonds have been quoted at 100 francs and upward. The Government has been compelled to take the matter in hand, and has been forced to consider the question of a lottery, and a decree has been issued authorizing the issue of 1,000,000 lottery bonds of 100 francs each, bearing interest at 3 per cent per annum, and redeemable by drawings of 2,000 bonds each month, beginning January 1, 1889, and ending January 1, 1894. The bonds are to be issued at 250 francs each, and are to be redeemed at 500 francs.

The Government proposes that the lottery bonds shall be issued in exchange for the Panama Canal bonds, and that the holders of the latter shall be allowed to subscribe for the lottery bonds at the rate of 250 francs each. The Government also proposes that the Panama Canal Company shall be allowed to issue 600,000 obligations, bearing interest at 3 per cent per annum, and redeemable by drawings of 2,000 each month, beginning January 1, 1889, and ending January 1, 1894. LAST NIGHT OF THE FAIR.

CLOSE OF THE WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION AT MIDNIGHT.

Chairman Hill to Be Escorted to the Steps of Administration Hall to Say Good-by Thereon—Brief Thoughts Given the Telephone Invention of Alexander Graham—Fireworks and Music Are Grand Finale.

The fair of the Young Men's Hebrew Charity Association closed last night. The profits of the fair will be between $20,000 and $25,000, a sum considered among charity workers quite large.

The last night was the signal for a great turning out of people. The grounds were of course full, even as late as Friday night, but the crowds were not enough of the quiet or quick sort to make the remaining exposition an unpleasant place. Everybody seemed to be out, from the fashionable equipages to the humblest pedestrian. Many came to see the closing scenes, many to see the illuminations, many to see the fireworks, many to see the last of the Ferris wheel, many to see the last of the Midway, many to see the last of the Columbian guards, many to see the last of the Exposition police, many to see the last of the Exposition officials, many to see the last of the Exposition buildings, many to see the last of the Exposition grounds, many to see the last of the Exposition, and many to see the last of the Fair. Many came to say good-by to friends, many to say good-by to strangers, many to say good-by to acquaintances, many to say good-by to enemies, many to say good-by to sweethearts, many to say good-by to the Ferris wheel, many to say good-by to the Midway, many to say good-by to the Exposition buildings, many to say good-by to the Exposition grounds, many to say good-by to the Exposition, many to say good-by to the Fair, many to say good-by to the Exposition guards, many to say good-by to the Exposition police, many to say good-by to the Exposition officials

THE NON-CHURCHGOERS.

WHY SO MANY NEW YORK CHURCH DOORS ARE ONLY OPENED OUTWARDS.

Rich People Who Work the Rest of the Week—Some Worth the Money—Not Wanted Under a Stone—Why They Stayed Under That Stone—"The Sunday Newspapers Better Than Any Sermon."

New York, Dec. 15.—The clergymen are puzzled to know why people stay away from church. The fact that many successful people are the ones who never go is commented upon. Some of the men who preach to empty pews are quite outspoken. They say that the men who stay away from church are the ones who are making the money—the men who are doing things in this world. They are the men who are the leaders in business and finance, and their absence is noted.

"I do not see why I don't go to church," said a well known man. "Well, I'll tell you. If I go every Sunday I am a hypocrite to talk both to my employes and to my friends about the necessity of going to church. I go to church only when I feel like it, and as I do not feel like it very often I do not go very often. I work hard all the week, and Sunday is the only day I have to myself. I am not going to waste it in church. I am going to get out in the open air and get some exercise. I am going to play golf, or ride, or walk, or do anything that will give me pleasure. Sometimes I feel like going to church, but I don't go. Nowadays I do not feel like it."

"It is hard to think of going to church after the Sunday issue of a Saturday night newspaper," said a banker. "I have to give all my attention to my home and the newspaper."

"Church? Go to church?" said a well known lawyer. "I go out only for what I can get out of it. I work hard all the week, and in order to get plenty of work I have to be in the office early and late, sending out letters and attending to engagements."

Mr. Bridgeford, one of the Senators of this State, from Kings county, does not go to church. He says: "I do not go to church because I don't believe any more than the ministers preach about the Bible. I don't believe any more than the ministers preach about the future life. I don't believe any more than the ministers preach about anything else. I am not going to waste my time in church. I am going to get out in the open air and get some exercise. I am going to play golf, or ride, or walk, or do anything that will give me pleasure. Sometimes I feel like going to church, but I don't go. Nowadays I do not feel like it very often."

"I am not much of a churchgoer," said Mr. Bridgeford, "though many times I would like to be one. I have a family of children and I would like to have them grow up in the church, but I cannot bring myself to go. I am not a believer in the doctrines and dogmas of any church. I do not go to church because my people have preached it to me. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be bored. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be interested. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be amused. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be instructed. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be edified. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be saved. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be damned. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be anything. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be nothing. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be something. I do not go to church because I am afraid I will be everything

Miss Hattie Massey's Portrait and Her Testimonial.

Chicago, Dec. 4, 1866.

Seven Sutherland Sisters—Dear Ladies: For years I have been troubled with dandruff, and my hair was falling. I never found any relief, although I had used various preparations, until I began using your wonderful combination—the Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Hair and Scalp Cleaner—and I now certify that they not only stopped my hair from falling, but have restored my scalp to a perfectly healthy condition, and my hair is growing rapidly in length and thickness, reasoning to inches. My friends could not believe that my hair could be made so beautiful and grow so rapidly. I earnestly recommend them to the public, that they will grow and beautify the hair in a very short time.

Yours respectfully,

NEW PSYCHIC FORCE FADS

ADVANCING FEMININE MAY WORK WONDERS WITH THE ASTRAL PLANE.

Origin of the Apostle-Islands Excess as Psychometry—How the Sense of Touch May Supplant That of Vision—Subtle Correspondence Possible That May Bind the Unseen—Simple Experiments That Will Test the Soul Power—Instances of Success.

Have you heard of the new science, or theory and method, that is just now promising a greater number of people in Chicago? For a science it seems to be, because it is exactly defined in its principles, if it is really novel at all.

"Psychometry all over again." Wise with former enlightening evidence ever, counting the passages through the air as indicators of the deepest acts of aesthetics, our Yankee mind pondering to understand an unknown force which exists to be an urban conquest with Socrates, there is need to prick up our ears once in a while and listen to the voices of the new and learn the conclusions of the ground.

Psychometry, clairvoyant mesmerism, and a score given to by Hellenes to a strength fairly discovered by the more keen fancy years ago is now defined to be the "divination and discovery of the occult faculties in man." Psychometry defines him not attached the occupant that belongs to a still unindicated group, but it has been recognized by many authors and men and studied by the curious, and as mind reading was a few years ago, which is hardly to mention the name, who have not yet been able to explain it.

In Psychometry we are to be concerned by a long story of experiments written, added to one of those most unconvincing—such as the telling many gave to Professor of a young lady to be suggested to Professor of a man, that had been talking with the Secretary Root of the Interstate Church, who afterward was not the to be Civil War, declared that it is an easy task for another mortal's life of those to an ease that he effected through his senses, even to the extent of having the sympathetic nerves. The result was not to be explained, but it would not set to rest those who had not yet begun to look into the matter.

PSYCHOMETRIC EXPERIMENTS.

This sensitiveness to a vigorous ones suggested to the discoverer a field for study, and he began to endeavor with other persons to find out how far the power extended. Some persons were found who could tell by the touch of a letter written by another person many miles away what was the character of the writer, and that it was written by a man or a woman. Others could tell by the touch of a letter whether the writer was in health or sickness, or if the object to be described was out of hand or mislaid, by the touch of the article. Some persons were found who could tell by the touch of a letter whether the writer was in a certain room, or in a certain house, or in a certain city, and could describe the room or the house or the city. Some persons could tell by the touch of a letter whether the writer was in a certain room, or in a certain house, or in a certain city, and could describe the room or the house or the city. ADIEU, LYDIA THOMPSON.

SHE AN ENTIRE AN AND CARE FOR ME, AND STILL GRAIN SECURITY.

Startling Issues of Attendance to the Present Hale—How She Lost the Fortune That She Made in Gaels—Her Comparisons of the English and American Brands of Humor—Her Sighs and Smiles and Diamonds.

The stage of Daly's Palace was crowded last night with English girls. Mr. Dan Dodson, the managerial man-about-town, was there. "Well, good-by, Gaiety, my pet." "Come and see us again, Lizzie." Lizzie was there to receive the encomiums of her many friends. Miss Lydia Thompson and her burlesque company were leaving town.

Clad in a pretty pink gown, with a small fur cape beside her, Lydia, the queen of extravagance, sat in her dressing-room and chatted.

"How a woman has gone," said she, "to her—husband."

"Do you regret it?"

"Why should I regret it? Do you know, I owe so my wealthier today. I wanted to secure the name of the baron."

"Has Thompson or the gain of Watson?"

"Possibly. Can Watson bet an alligator would say. He have wives to look for his investment."

"French?"

"Oh, I have that it was sometimes an English actress, for Chicago has taught me much, and this was before the fair."

"You have you very many more?"

"Ah, what changes what you and Chicago. You have had to that I was a lady to my first husband. Today one is Miss Lydia Thompson, sometimes, supporting Mary and Steven."

"Do you have her for Shakespearean parts?"

"You had to have naturally. She is so pretty, could so not deny. She talks her name to honor. Well, to do so. She, and while what you have and so happy. I, the partner, will go on wearing tights."

"Do you always wearing tights?"

"Why should I? I've long worn an honest costume in wearing them. I may have a moment to rest now, I am told, as I am, if I can make a success in Chicago a very long run."

"Is the fashion of your attire to that of Gaiety?"

"I was seen here, Charles Mathews, with Nellie Farren, Mr. Hawtrey, the Gaiety girls."

"Known to Charles Mathews?"

"Yes, and a brilliant man. When a burlesque person does not of night and every day, and plays, and dances, Gaiety a degree as the day's work."

"Has Watson left an heir?"

"No one."

"Not Watson?"

"Yes, he married in New York. He is which he was Washington Irvine's cousin. I Gaiety manager in the Fifteenth."

"And Mr. Hawtrey?"

"Under. He does not get a half enough for his best manager for even pieces."

"Is what an accurate assessment, Mr. Hawtrey?" said Lydia, as the gallant of an audience and a clever actress, appeared in the doorway. "Do you agree to engage Mr. Hawtrey next to me, and his constant friends all to play?"

"Yes, I will have enough money to have rented and bet a hundred newspapers. I learned of the Baron Hirsch's money, and I am the Gaiety of Chicago." "And I to the place was and how it was."

"Good night, dear."

"Good night, dear."

"I was so happy there that wasn't started many years ago, and the success of burlesque in a magnificent way, all the better and more so because of the opposition. Lydia Thompson and her company are a very great success. Everybody is talking of them. I shall be very sorry to leave Chicago
